Lead Pellets in Gizzard Cause Poisoning of Ducks

ST. PAUL—Lead shot that never hit any ducks may nevertheless be responsible for the present alarming decline in the duck population, suggests Vincent H. Reid, of the Minnesota division of game and fish.

Gizzards of 1,084 wild ducks which were analyzed in his study contained lead shot in slightly over 9 per cent of all cases.

The ducks had picked up the pellets along with other food from the shallow bottom mud.

It is known that such gizzard pellets can cause lead poisoning which may affect the ducks' ability to reproduce, if it does not kill them outright.

The problem of lead poisoning from spent shot is becoming more acute, Reid says, because increasing numbers of hunters are now shooting over Canadian and western waters where the main breeding grounds are.

Neighbors Plow Land For Hard Luck Farmer

LA CENTER, KY.—Farmers of the Hazelwood community of Caldwell county wiped away a pall of despair that had been hanging over the Roy Elrod farm for several days.

Elrod and his boys were facing failure in this crop season because lightning struck their barn and destroyed all their work horses, corn and hay, the farm wagon and many smaller tools.

Then the neighbors gathered—taking time out from their own piled-up chores—and put out the crop the Elrods had planned. Seventeen tractors rolled into the Elrod driveway soon after the sun came up and drivers asked simply to be put to work.

By mid-morning 20 acres of corn land had been plowed and the drills already were in action, and 30 additional acres had been plowed and prepared for soybeans. Later the two-acre tobacco patch was broken, disked and put into shape. The day's work put the Elrod crop plans well ahead of schedule and gave the family a boost that will enable it to put out a normal crop and make up some of the loss resulting from the fire.

Modern City Frightens Prisoner of 34 Years

CHICAGO.—Robert Webb, 60 years old, stared at the hurrying crowds and the giant buildings in Chicago's Loop and couldn't believe what he saw.

It was the first time Webb had seen the city with the eyes of a free man in 34 years.

Webb was known as Chicago's first automobile bandit. But the automobile traffic he saw was almost more than he could face.

Except for a few fleeting glimpses of the city on the way to the Criminal Courts building for hearings on petitions for writs of habeas corpus and a six-week interval when he escaped in 1925, he has not seen the outside world since he went to prison in 1914.

Webb killed a policeman trying to arrest him in his hideout on a charge of automobile theft. He was sentenced to life imprisonment but was released on parole.

He walked hand-in-hand with his sister, Mrs. Mary Webb Hamilton, through the streets of the city he knew as a youth.

"I can't believe it," he said. "I never thought such changes could take place, even in the time I've been away."

Webb visited Gen. John V. Clinnin, who supported more than a dozen attempts to gain Webb's parole.

Webb won Clinnin's gratitude in 1917, when he helped to quell a prison riot. Clinnin at that time was a major in charge of a national guard unit fighting the riot.

Webb gripped Mrs. Hamilton's hand as the time came to cross the street. The shifting traffic lights and the halting and stopping of hundreds of automobiles appeared too much for him. He almost was afraid to cross when the lights turned green.

"It was nothing like this the last time I was here," he said.

Airman Taxis Plane Down Main Street; Fined $10

DALTON, NEB. — Aeronautics department officials were stumped when William D. Bates taxied his plane up Main street.

Bates had landed on a field outside the city limits. He maneuvered his aircraft onto the highway, proceeded into town and parked in front of a cafe. There he sipped a cup of coffee.

Study of the department's rules failed to show a precedent. The state highway patrol came up with the answer. Bates was fined $10 for operating a motor vehicle more than eight feet wide on a highway.

Hydraulic Press Crushes Old Autos into Scrap Packages

LOS ANGELES.—What is claimed to be the world's largest hydraulic press went into operation to help relieve the shortage of scrap iron among the Pacific Coast's booming steel mills.

The machine, which looks like an elaborated guillotine, will crush an entire automobile and a solid mass of metal two feet square and four feet high.

Set up at the plant of Jerry Williams, a salvage dealer in suburban Southgate, the press was developed to help handle the unprecedented quantities of postwar scrap coming in from the Pacific and other sources.

The machine was two years in design and construction, and cost over $100,000.

While there are in operation a number of presses that will flatten an entire automobile, Williams was unable to locate one that would crush and bale simultaneously.

His specifications were a press that would take a mass of scrap sixteen and one-half feet long, six feet wide and five feet high and reduce it to bale size.

This called for a pressure of 500 tons. As finally designed, the machine itself weighs 226 tons, and has a foundation extending 30 feet into the ground. It is now demolishing a small mountain of old cars and everything else from bedsteads to water heaters, which is one of the principal scrap sources of southern California mills.

Contractor Agitates Paint With Wife's Washing Machine

TRENTON, N. J.—Thanks to his wife's washing machine, a Trenton contractor is putting a new coat of paint on the 720-foot Delaware river bridge between Milford, N. J., and upper Black Eddy, Pa.

The Delaware river joint toll bridge commission hired Dewey D'Agostino to paint the super-structure, specifying that the paint must be mixed daily by an agitator. But agitators, D'Agostino found, are not to be had.

D'Agostino, who once had to find a non-union midget to paint the understructure of another bridge, applied his ingenuity and appropriated his wife's washing machine. The job is proceeding on schedule.

What of Mrs. D'Agostino? "It cost me $400 for a new machine for her," D'Agostino said.

Candy Tester Gets Pay For Eating Chocolates

NEW YORK.—Peter Laureys is one of those happy men whose childhood dreams come true. He gets paid for eating candy.

There are only a handful of jobs like Laureys' in all the United States. He is a candy taster. Every day he clocks in at 10 a. m. ready for another hard day of nibbling chocolates and licking lollipops.

For the benefit of a curious and envious throng, Laureys, a beaming man of 58, donned the white jacket worn by candy tasters and went through his daily routine.

From a conveyor belt he plucked a chocolate, bit into it, raised his eyes dreamily and meditated.

"Gold Coast cocoa bean," he announced. "The fondant (cream base) is a little thick but otherwise all right."

Then he yanked a lollipop from the belt, held it up to the light as a wine connoisseur would do. He licked it with the tip of his tongue. "Umm," he said, "should have more clarity—I mean it should be as clear as glass and smooth as a mirror. This is a little clouded."

Instructions went down the line to the operators of the chocolate and lollipop mixtures.

Laureys has been working in candy kitchens since he was 11 and almost five decades of experience have given him the ability to detect any variation in the 11 basic candy formulas.

On any given day, he said he tastes at least 300 chocolates. From the best of the batch he selects one pound and eats all of it down to the last fragment.

"And I go to the movies at night," he added, "I always take a jar of hard candy with me."

He claims he is losing weight!

Hot Foot in Tearoom Costs Two Pranksters $10,000

SALEM, N. J. — A taproom "hot foot" cost two Salem men $10,000.

A jury in Salem county court returned the $10,000 verdict against George Kernan, 38, and Ralph Craig, 36, who were charged by Clair Scott, 44, with giving him a "hot foot" while he dozed off.

Scott contended in the damage suit that his stockings and trousers became aflame and his right leg was burned.

Scott was hospitalized several months and his leg still requires treatment, he contended. The trial was delayed for several years because Kernan and Craig were in the military service.

Home Destroyed, Family Gets New House in Sixteen Days

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—The future looked bleak for the John Zietz family. Their two-story farm home south of here was destroyed in a fire.

Sixteen days after the fire the family moved into a new prefabricated house across the road from their former home. Some 75 friends and neighbors joined in assembling the structure and in donating household appliances.

Zietz, his wife and two daughters had been living at a neighbor's residence adjacent to their farm in the meantime.

First Word Russian Parents Teach Their Babies Is "No"

LAKE SUCCESS, L. I.—This conversation took place today between the Soviet Union's Yakov A. Malik, who will succeed Andrei A. Gromyko as Russian delegate to the United Nations, and a reporter, Peter Kihss:

Malik: "You really should learn Russian."

Kihss: "I know two words—'da' (yes) and 'nyet' (no)."

Malik: "Yes, but all the newspapers here say we only say 'nyet.'"

Kihss: "Well, in the United States the first word we teach our babies is 'da.' Maybe there's a difference between your country and mine."

Malik (grinning): "The first word we teach them is 'nyet.'"

Cattlemen Trap Buzzards That Eat Live Calves

LAKE CHARLES, LA.—Cattlemen in southwest Louisiana are warring on a ravenous flock of buzzards which has been passing up carcasses for living animals.

The buzzards have been attacking and killing all kinds of livestock, but mostly newly born calves.

W. L. Calwell, who lives near Lake Charles, reported the flying scavengers had killed 20 of his calves in a year and seven in one week.

John E. Jackson, Calcasieu Parish agent, has told farmers to set up poultry wire traps in their large pastures, using a carcass and dead buzzard as a decoy.

He said one farmer near Baton Rouge, La., had trapped and killed 3,500 buzzards in one season by using this method.

In most cases, the cattlemen reported, a flock of about 350 buzzards would swoop down and attack a helpless newly born calf.

Uncle Sam Says

The dollars my young nieces and nephews earn this summer can give them a stake in the future and help keep the country's economy running on an even keel. By investing as much of their summertime earnings in United States Savings Bonds as possible, junior and sis will be building a nestegg for achievement of future goals. It's up to us grownups to have learned how big a nestegg we can accumulate through the payroll savings plan for buying savings bonds to improve upon and junior that the future holds for them what they hold for the future.

IN MEMORIAM

In remembrance of our dear one, Samlel J. Jennings, born August 5th, 1881, died July 15, 1947.

I often sit and wonder,
When the lights are burning low;
Was it because we loved you too much,
God's call was you must go.

You were always kind and true,
Always met a smile
My dear one, how we miss you.

Sad but sudden shock severe,
I never thought death so near;
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.

To your grave we sadly wander,
Flowers place with loving care;
And we feel you are near us,
As we sadly linger there.

We miss you so much and always will,
There is a vacant place no one can fill,
A vacant chair, a vacant place everywhere.

—A broken hearted Wife and Son, Mrs. S. J. Jennings and son.

Wheeler, of Spout Springs, Va., took place Thursday at 4:00 o'clock at the home of the bride. The living room where the ceremony was performed was decorated with palms, native greens and tall baskets of white gladioli, and lighted by candles in four candelabra. The Rev. David G. Baby, 1, Swims and Dives In Movies for a Living

LOS ANGELES.—Dennis McShane has gone to work early in life.

Dennis is only one year old but he has blossomed out as a full-fledged wage earner. He already has a social security card. He can't walk yet, but he's husky and weighs 32 pounds.

Dennis can swim, and how. He started swimming in the bathtub when he was five months old and, at nine months, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McShane, put him under the training of an expert coach.

Dennis has appeared in one movie and is scheduled to start work in another soon. The baby can swim across a 30-foot pool and dive from a regulation diving board.

Persistent Suitor Refuses To Take "No" for Answer

ST. LOUIS, MO. — An 18-year-old Minneapolis, Minn., girl was on her way back home by train after a two-day auto trip marked by several marriage proposals.

Marion Noodleman came into a police station and asked for assistance after Lawrence Londer, 22, also of Minneapolis, threatened to leave her because she kept saying "no."

She said he proposed "repeatedly and unsuccessfully" during the trip which included stops at Mason City, Ia., and Kansas City. She said Londer even took her to the city hall to get a marriage license, I might change my mind."

Londer was not held.

Police Wait Three Hours As Burglar Sits With Baby

NEW YORK. — Two detectives brought in their man—but only after they'd joined him in a three-hour baby-sitting task.

The officers, John Tracy and Edward Gillen, investigating the burglary of a candy store, seized their man in his Bronx home.

Kenneth Connors, 26, admitted the burglary, police said. But he told the detectives he'd be unable to accompany them to the police station. His wife, he explained, had gone to the movies, leaving him to care for their infant daughter.

The officers shared the baby-sitting task. Three hours later, the wife returned and Connors was taken to the station house where he was booked on a burglary charge.
